Direction: Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words/phrases have been printed in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

Governments have traditionally equated economic progress with steel mills and cement factories. While urban centers thrive and city dwellers get rich, hundreds of millions of farmers remain mired in poverty. However, fears of food shortages, a rethinking of antipoverty priorities and the crushing recession in 2008 are causing a dramatic shift in world economic policy in favour of greater support for agriculture.

The last time when the world's farmers felt such love was in the 1970s. At that time, as food prices spiked, there was real concern that the world was facing a crisis in which the planet was simply unable to produce enough grain and meat for an expanding population. Governments across the developing world and international aid organisations plowed investment into agriculture in the early 1970s, while technological breakthroughs, like high-yield strains of important food crops, boosted production. The result was the Green Revolution and food production exploded.

But the Green Revolution became a victim of its own success. Food prices plunged by some 60% by the late 1980s from their peak in the mid- 1970s. Policymakers and aid workers turned their attention to the poor's other pressing needs, such as health care and education. Farming got starved of resources and investment. By 2004, aid directed at agriculture sank to 3.5% and "Agriculture lost its glitter." Also, as consumers in high-growth giants such as China and India became wealthier, they began eating more meat, so grain once used for human consumption got diverted to beef up livestock.

By early 2008, panicked buying by importing countries and restrictions slapped on grain exports by some big producers helped drive prices up to heights not seen for three decades. Making matters worse, land and resources got reallocated to produce cash crops such as biofuels and the result was that voluminous reserves of grain evaporated. Protests broke out across the emerging world and fierce food riots toppled governments.

This spurred global leaders into action. This made them aware that food security is one of the fundamental issues in the world that has to be dealt with in order to maintain administrative and political stability. This also spurred the U.S. which traditionally provisioned food aid from American grain surpluses to help needy nations, to move towards investing in farm sectors around the globe to boost productivity. This move helped countries become more productive for themselves and be in a better position to feed their own people.

Africa, which missed out on the first Green Revolution due to poor policy and limited resources, also witnessed a 'change'. Swayed by the success of East Asia, the primary poverty-fighting method favoured by many policymakers in Africa was to get farmers off their farms and into modern jobs in factories and urban centers. But that strategy proved to be highly insufficient. Income levels in the countryside badly trailed those in cities while the FAO estimated that the number of poor going hungry in 2009 reached an all time high at more than one billion.

In India on the other hand, with only 40% of its farmland irrigated, entire economic boom currently underway is held hostage by the unpredictable monsoon. With much of India's farming areas suffering from drought this year, the government will have a tough time meeting its economic growth targets. In a report, Goldman Sachs predicted that if this year too receives weak rains, it could cause agriculture to contract by 2% this fiscal year, making the government's 7% GDP-growth target look "a bit rich". Another green revolution is the need of the hour and to make it a reality, the global community still has much backbreaking farm work to do.

1. What is the author's main objective in writing the passage

- (1) Criticising developed countries for not bolstering economic growth in poor nations
- (2) Analysing the disadvantages of the Green Revolution
- (3) Persuading experts that a strong economy depends on industrialization and not agriculture
- (4) Making a case for the international society to engineer a second Green Revolution
- (5) Rationalising the faulty agriculture policies of emerging countries

2. Which of the following is an adverse impact of the Green Revolution ?

- (1) Unchecked crop yields resulted in large tracts of land becoming barren
- (2) Withdrawal of fiscal impetus from agriculture to other sectors
- (3) Farmers began soliciting government subsidies for their produce
- (4) Farmers rioted as food prices fell so low that they could not make ends meet
- (5) None of these

3. What is the author trying to convey through the phrase "making the government's 7% GDP growth target look "a bit rich" ?

- (1) India is unlikely to achieve the targeted growth rate
- (2) Allocation of funds to agriculture has raised India's chances of having a high GDP
- (3) Agricultural growth has artificially inflated India's GDP and such growth is not real
- (4) India is likely to have one of the highest GDP growth rates
- (5) A large portion of India's GDP is contributed by agriculture

4. Which of the following factors was/were responsible for the neglect of the farming sector after the green revolution ?

- (A) Steel and cement sectors generated more revenue for the government as compared to agriculture.
- (B) Large scale protests against favouring agriculture at the cost of other important sectors such as education and healthcare.

(C) Attention of policy makers and aid organizations was diverted from agriculture to other sectors.

- (1) None
- (2) Only (C)
- (3) Only (B) & (C)
- (4) Only (A) & (B)
- (5) All (A), (B) & (C)

5. What prompted leaders throughout the world to take action to boost the agriculture sector in 2008?

- (1) Coercive tactics by the U.S. which restricted food aid to poor nations
- (2) The realization of the link between food security and political stability
- (3) Awareness that performance in agriculture is necessary in order to achieve the targeted GDP
- (4) Reports that high-growth countries like China and India were boosting their agriculture sectors to capture the international markets
- (5) Their desire to influence developing nations to slow down their industrial development.

6. What motivated the U.S. to focus on investing in agriculture across the globe ?

- (1) To make developing countries become more reliant on U.S. aid
- (2) To ensure grain surpluses so that the U.S. had no need to import food
- (3) To make those countries more self-sufficient to whom it previously provided food
- (4) To establish itself in the market before the high-growth giants such as India and China could establish themselves
- (5) None of these

7. What impact did the economic recession of 2008 have on agriculture ?

- (1) Governments equated economic stability with industrial development and shifted away from agriculture
- (2) Lack of implementation of several innovative agriculture programmes owing to shortage of funds
- (3) It prompted increased investment and interest in agriculture
- (4) The GDP as targeted by India was never achieved because of losses in agriculture
- (5) None of these

8. What encouraged African policymakers to focus on urban jobs ?

- (1) Misapprehension that it would alleviate poverty as it did in other countries
- (2) Rural development outstripped urban development in many parts of Africa
- (3) Breaking out of protests in the country and the fear that the government would topple
- (4) Blind imitation of western models of development
- (5) None of these

9. Which of the following had contributed to exorbitant food prices in 2008 ?

- (A) Hoarding of food stocks by local wholesalers which inadvertently created a food shortage.

(B) Export of foodgrains was reduced by large producers.

(C) Diverting resources from cultivation of foodgrains to that of more profitable crops.

- (1) None
- (2) Only (C)
- (3) Only (B)
- (4) All (A), (B) & (C)
- (5) Only (B) & (C)

10. Which of the following is true about the state of agriculture in India at present ?

(A) Of all the sectors, agriculture needs the highest allocation of funds.

(B) Contribution of agriculture to India's GDP this year would depend greatly upon the monsoon rains.

(C) As India is one of the high-growth countries, it has surplus food reserves to export to other nations.

- (1) Only (A) and (C)
- (2) Only (C)
- (3) Only (B)
- (4) Only (B) and (C)
- (5) None of these

Direction:Rearrange the following sentences (A), (B), (C), (D), (E) and (F) to make a meaningful paragraph and then answer the questions which follow

(A)While these disadvantages of bio fuels are serious, they are the only alternate energy source of the future and the sooner we find solutions to these problems the faster we will be able to solve the problems are now facing with gasoline.

(B) This fuel can also help to stimulate jobs locally since they are also much safer to handle than gasoline and can thus have the potential to turnaround a global economy.

(C) These include dependence on fossil fuels for the machinery required to produce biofuel which ends up polluting as much as the burning of fossil fuels on roads and exorbitant cost of biofuels which makes it very difficult for the common man to switch to this option.

(D) This turnaround can potentially help to bring world peace and end the need to depend on foreign countries for energy requirements.

(E) Biofuels are made from plant sources and since these sources are available in abundance and can be reproduced on a massive scale they form an energy source that is potentially unlimited.

(F) However everything is not as green with the biofuels as it seems as there are numerous disadvantages involved which at times overshadow their positive impact.
